Safety Moment: Balancing Scouting Life
Ask any experienced leader what the number one thing a new leader should remember, and most will say balancing your Scouting life. We'll discuss how that can actually happen!

Hot Topic: Making a Splash with Aquatics in Scouting
Water-based activities teach Scouts confidence, safety, and responsibility – all while having a blast! Whether it's swimming, boating, or high-adventure sailing, aquatics help Scouts build skills that last a lifetime. But aquatics activities just don't happen without lots of preparation.

Membership Moment: Membership Booths
Membership booths at community events are a great way to invite families to join the fun—hosting fun events at the unit level is what welcomes the family to Scouting.

Cub Scout Leader Breakout: Everyone Volunteers!
It can be a challenge to get parents to step up and volunteer to help their Cub's pack and den. We'll discuss some suggestions on how to make that process more successful.

Troop Resource Survey for Scout troop families

Scouts BSA Leader Breakout: Introduction to Leadership Skills for Troops (ILST)
ILST gives Scouts in troop leadership positions an opportunity to get to know each other, to build relationships, to understand each of their job responsibilities, and to help make their troop successful. An ILST training should be run after every unit election.
